

Essay by Father
(circa 1964)

This is an essay Father composed in India a long time ago. He used to read it to us every day!

Glorious revelation of divine Self-Consciousness, as the source of Infinite Knowledge and Power, is the only purpose. The Creation is projected into the negative imagination of differential forms of Knowledge, for the spontaneous movement of their limited forms of Knowledge to the source of their positive unity under the absolute trance of physical ignorance.

The urge for Divine Self-Revelation in personal life of active Knowledge and Power of Love had been the only object of the mightiest men of creative imagination who distinguished themselves as the glorious forms of divine nature.

Since the time was not yet ripe, the omnipotent Knowledge of these divine forms were partially expressed and nature was prevented from reproducing these partial expressions of divine omnipotence in their human forms by the mechanisms of resistance in friends and nearest disciples and followers fell far short of the standard of their leaders.

By the pull of the spiritual truth, vibrant organizations were built up in the name of these divine forms and began to grow in mass with a corresponding loss in the depth of Knowledge and Spirit till they have become existent as huge bodies of powerless institutions.

But the passage of time which flows unnoticed behind the animal hue and cry of semi-conscious activities of biological process, the human consciousness has been conditioned by the complex movement of multitudinous forms of Its nature, for recognition of the integral revelation of Divine Knowledge and Power which is pressing for its reception from within and without.

Therefore, the presence of divine Self-Consciousness in all the glories of Its Knowledge, Power and Love in the life and work of a person is really not an accident of an unexpected phenomenon, but the beginning of the real purpose of creation.

This manifestation is an immediate response of our eternal prayer for redemption from oppressive ignorance, an immediate beginning of our noblest urge from supra-mental knowledge and power, and immediate beginning of a higher order of existence of peace, prosperity, and happiness in a glorious world of divine LOVE and MUTUALITY.

This divine personality is a lover of the world and makes no difference between the poor and the rich, the oppressor and the oppressed, the good and the evil, the high and the low, the learned and the illiterate, the great and the small, the pious and the sinner and between Knowledge and ignorance of this period which forgot to create and can only exist in the contradiction of creations.

As the true lover he serves the entire humanity by showing the easiest, the quickest and the most pleasant way to supra-mental Knowledge and Power by the self-conscious process of evolution for all, through the natural leaders of the new beginning, the first to evolve.

Comprehensive awareness of the activities of the modern human nature is the primary necessity and the "King" to the principal that governs the individual process of self-conscious evolution of supra-mental Knowledge.

All visible activities are prompted by nature and nature is conditional by the limit of Knowledge, or rather the status of Knowledge. Therefore, the trance of Knowledge in the forms of its creation causes the fall from its native genius with a consequential degeneration of nature with the characteristics of disorder and death.

Human consciousness is becoming more and more alarmed by such activities as powerless witnesses. Regular researches and experiments for the maintenance of an ever improving industry of the means of destruction, perpetuated by the rising tension through oppression, strife, clashes, limited wars, etc., on the foundation of a growing example of such activities.

Vulgar satisfaction in the achievement of speed, rocketry, and similar projects of physical feats on the face of an impending death of 3500 millions of human life by starvation in the course of the next thirty-one years only represents another example of the moribund nature. The utilization of resources on the first item is equivalent to fifty thousand rupees per head per year while it is twenty thousand rupees per head per year of the total population of the world in terms of the present value of Indian currency. This colossal consumption is quite enough to wipe out the human species from the face of the earth much earlier than thirty-one years.

The fall of human knowledge in all its spheres has degenerated the nature into cannibalism. This cannibal nature has plunged the existence into the darkness of ignorance, which it tends to prolong by resistance to the Light of Knowledge. We can find the degeneration in spiritual and religious spheres by their passive support to the slaughter of human values and truth with a lip service to divinity.

Intellectual degeneration represents itself in the perversity and chaos of colors and Calligraphy and finds a ready recognition as great works of art and literature. These modern intellectuals with a tremendous limitation of their vision suggest surrender to the matter of fact existence of the iron rule of machines till the end wipes out everything in the deadly silence of consciousness.

Science itself has become apprehensive as the creator of the monster where monstrosity is manifested in the various methods of its application. The positive aspects of its activities in the field of medicine and industry, which it advertises, have really started to beat the purpose.

It has only come to its sense of its own position as a creation on the basis of fictions. But with its fictitious limitations and narrowness of nature, science rejects all Knowledgeable forms as fictitious, but never tries to understand how its own position as a creation on the basis of fiction can effectuate the calculated results with relative certainty. All its efforts to explain the movement of cosmic existence by its fictitious laws have been shattered beyond regeneration once and for all.

The all around failure of the modern forms of knowledge has plunged the world into fear and apprehension forcing the humanity to descend into the narrowest spheres of individual preoccupation where Knowledge and Light of Self-Conscious existence is dreaded.

So far as maintenance of status quo and personal position is concerned there is no difference between educated and illiterate, the president and the prostitute, a prime minister and a pickpocket, all are equally obstinate and slow to understand.

The spiritual and religious organizations are the most obstinate institutions and are suffering from the rigidity of inertia. They look upon the loss of human values as callously as the rich look upon the starvation of the dying poor.
